8 Quality Growth:

Successful participation in quality growth community programs.

The State of Utah emphasizes the importance of incorporating quality growth principles in the planning and operation of city government. Communities that demonstrate their desire to improve through planning should receive additional points in the rating and ranking process.

In the rating and ranking of CDBG applications, each region will recognize an applicant's accomplishments consistent with these principles by adding additional points when evaluating the following:

1. Demonstration of local responsibility for planning and land-use in their communities in coordination and cooperation with other governments.
2. Development of efficient infrastructure including water and energy conservation.
3. Incorporation of housing opportunity and affordability into community planning.
4. Protection and conservation plan for water, air, critical lands, important agricultural lands and historic resources.
